

The ANTIthesis

The DEATH of an Architect

Where do you see yourself in 10 years? "I have no idea"

Why am I doing this?

My barista at Starbucks is paid twice my salary and has social benefits.

COPY -> PASTE buildings

You will work on Excel all day"

Architorture

Architecture is not about philosophy, emotions and feelings anymore.

It's about cost, materials, engineering and time.

This is incredibly SAD

"We want the most basic construction. Something you would find in Ottawa"
-Low cost
-No design features
-Low maintenance

Why can't I just draw instead?

I can't concentrate anymore

Faint in the shower

Faint in the kitchen before crits

technicalities

My PC gave up on me

First concussion

Second concussion

Third concussion

Rhino stopped working

4 all-nighters in a row.
Falls in the stairs

I feel depressed now.

I have difficulty remembering things

wakes up in the ER

Exams

1%  Exhaustion

Stress

Antidepressants

Loss of appetite

Loss of motivation

"Deadlines"

Anxiety

Coffee

All-nighters

"ALL THOSE YEARS OF ARCHITECTURE SCHOOL FOR THIS?"

Hiring junior architect, 10 years of experience required

Mental breakdown

The concealed wine glass

I am trash

